Airline alliance survey 2007

The Airline Business Alliance survey provides a snapshot of the current state of co-operation deals between the world's main carriers. The survey focuses on those mainline scheduled passenger carriers that appear in the top 200 traffic ranking. This excludes regional and charter partners, as well as cargo agreements, which are covered in other special reports throughout the year. Links that only extend to a frequent flyer programme are not included. Membership of the main global alliances are indicated to the right of the name bar and have not been included in their own right in the listing unless a specific bilateral exists. Data for the listing was compiled in association with Airline Business by sister online service Air Transport Intelligence (www.rati.com). For definitions and notes see last page)

Notes and definitions

This survey covers close to 500 alliances among around 120 mainline passenger airlines, representing a snapshot of major cooperation deals in place by mid 2006.

Airlines included: The survey covers only those mainline scheduled passengers carriers which appeared in the Top 200 ranking by passenger traffic. Alliances among regional, charter and cargo carriers are covered in other reports during the year.

Sources: Data is largely sourced from airline questionnaire returns over the first half of 2006.

Parent/shareholders: Significant shareholders have been listed where they are declared but the overall percentages may not always total 100%.

Shareholdings: These cover holdings in other carriers, including regional cargo and charter operators, but exclude non-flying operations. Dates: The dates listed refer to the time when the cooperation started, but where this is not clear, the date of the agreement has been included. Pending agreements have been included where the deal is signed but not yet implemented.

Exclusions: The survey does not include cooperation based only on frequent flyer programme (FFP) links, interline agreements, special prorates or non-flying-related joint ventures.

Data collation: Data for the survey has been collated by Air Transport Intelligence (ATI), the online sister service to Airline Business. For further details and subscription information, visit www.rati.com.
